Is Britain turning into a Police State?

Editorial

Editor:
James Turner

We are now living in a police state? Is that a bit strong as our front page of this December issue states? I do not think so. The image of the old British bobby has changed until we have police at airports and in our streets looking like extras from Star Wars!
Three decades ago, armed police were a great rarity. Go to any court building today and you will see plenty of police armed with bullet proof vests and sub machine guns.
Another part of the picture is the emergence of nothing less than a Racial Enforcement Police. What are they enforcing? Anyone regarded as a 'racist' is fair game for harassment and arrest. Any White patriot merely possessing more than two copies of White nationalist literature which breaks the iniquitous Race Act can be arrested.
It doesn't stop there. If the Racial Enforcement Police (and we have to single out here the West Midlands Police as being amongst the worst offenders) have a warrant for your arrest under the purposely vague Race Acts, then they can caret away your computers and anything else no matter how vaguely or even not vaguely connected with politics. Whether you can them back or not from the Racial Enforcement Police is a hit or miss affair.

The newbies coming into the middle echelons of the police force from our Marxist infested universities, waving their silly Sociology Degrees, with their heads full of anti-racist sentiment are just the type whose main priority in pandering to ethnic minority interests whilst at the same time taking great delight in driving White patriots into the ground and treating ordinary British men and women, concerned about shocking state of our country as criminals.

They have successfully criminalised the word 'racist' as a criminal word. It isn't. Being a racist - and this editor is proud to be called a racist does NOT mean hating other races. All racism is, is the common sense belief that putting your own people first and loving your own race is paramount.

Everywhere to we have the System's eyes watching us through CCTV cameras. The number of CCTV cameras in the UK is now approaching a staggering four and a half MILLION - essentially one camera for every fourteen Britons. We are watched and recorded in practically every sphere of our day to day lives!

....and that last fact alone makes Great Britain a Police State!

The Way we Live Now

by Junius

Another outbreak of CJD?...

For the uniniated we must explain that "Dame" Vivienne Westwood invented 'punk style' – whatever that may mean – and is regarded as the doyenne of British Fashion. Just now, this lady is angry, very angry. So, is she enraged about British lads being killed or maimed in Bush's lunatic middle-east adventures, or about pensioners being deprived of their hard earned rights, or maybe about the appalling conditions in some of our hospitals? Well no, not exactly. Viv's beef is that the front covers of fashion mags do not feature enough black or Asian models.

Recently this valiant crusader for equality was severely shocked when a lady editor told her that putting a black face on the cover of her own publication would halve the usual sales figure. Fighting back, our gallant "Dame" averred that editors should use more non white models if the culture of racial discrimination was to change, even if sales suffered a drop now and then. She noted that Naomi Campbell – a personage famous for hurling objects at people when not getting her own way – was an instance of neglected black beauty. Footnote: This depressing saga should not be confused with Anna Sewell's delightful 'autobiography' of a horse published in 1877.

When someone enters another country without documentation and without permission then, to all intents and purposes, that is equivalent to invasion, and needs to be dealt with ruthlessly. The invaders have no rights whatsoever, human or otherwise.

By these reasonable, practical, sensible, folkish standards, the Greeks (Zeus bless them!) are doing a grand job but, in the eyes of our clownish one-worlders, they are being very naughty .To begin with, Greece recognises only 2 percent of asylum claims, against an EU average of 20 percent. Worse still, the coastguard force – sit back for a moment and ponder on what those words actually mean – is said to be driving would be 'asylum' seekers out of Greek territorial waters and putting them ashore on uninhabited islands where they have no water or food. Others find themselves in official detention centres where the conditions are alleged to be "degrading and inhuman". Given that many are said to be from war-torn Iraq and Afghanistan, we would have thought that Bush and his neo-con mates ought to be welcoming them into the US with open arms rather than see them floundering around in the Med.

But surely the fault here lies not with Greeks strenuous defending their native land, but rather with the imbeciles who foolishly encourage this unnatural migration which, in the end, will do nobody any good.

Rome, November 2007:

Giovanna Reggiani, 47, died after being robbed, beaten, and left in a ditch by a Romanian immigrant. Mayor Walter Veltroni said, "In the first seven months of the year, 75 per cent of those arrested for murder rape and robbery have been Romanians" Over the past year the police have arrested over 3,000 for various offences. The Italian government has reacted quickly and vows to repatriate 5,000 over the next few weeks. Meanwhile, as we write, three Romanians are in hospital after being violently attacked by angry natives. Now we are sure that a majority of these hardworking people, especially those who produce an excellent pinot noir, are thorough likeable and harmless. Nevertheless, this episode highlights the lunacy of opening your National borders to absolutely anybody.

It's easy to get it wrong

If you are a TV presenter in Angela's police state then you need, permanently, to have your wits about you. Eva Herman, poor thing,was careless. In a recent press conference to promote her new book, she declared that life under Hitler was not all that bad. She praised the togetherness, and the family values to be found in the Third Reich, but now long gone. For this unfortunate lapse from orthodoxy she lost the job which she had held for 19 years. Subsequently she got herself kicked off a talk show presented by one Herr Kerner who told her that she had become unpalatable to him and his guests.

The Central Council of Jews in Germany also expressed its outrage over Herman appearing at the annual conference of the German Catholic Forum, a deeply conservative group, where she received great applause. "The broad praise for the former TV host is not just evidence of the incapacity of the participants, but also a slap in the face for all those who have worked during the past 60 years to help Germans come to terms with the history of Germany's Nazi dictatorship," said Central Council Vice President Dieter Graumann. And, of course, it is also a slap in the face for the Zionist propaganda machine which, we are certain, is now losing the battle. Today, Mrs. Merkel and her barmy bunch are netting so many own goals that nobody can keep tabs on the score. Deutschland Erwache!

Councilor on terror video is a magistrate

A MIDLANDS councilor caught on video calling for violent uprisings by terrorists has been appointed a magistrate.

Ansar Ali Khan was previously exposed addressing frenzied crowds in Kashmir, on the India/Pakistan border, stating the disputed country "needs your blood".

Yet the Labour councilor for Washwood Heath will now sit as a magistrate - the first court that deals with defendants charged with serious crimes like terrorism.

Andrew Mitchell MP, shadow minister for Birmingham, called on Mr Khan to make a statement denouncing terrorism.

He said: "No doubt Councilor Khan will be wishing to place on the public record his abhorrence of all terrorism and violence and his absolute rejection of the views he allegedly held before."

Extremist literature found in mosques

Literature calling for the oppression of women and persecution of non-believers has been found in three Birmingham mosques.

Researchers discovered hate-filled books and pamphlets on sale at Central Mosque, in Highgate, and Green Lane and Salafi mosques, both in Small Heath.

Undercover staff from The Policy Exchange think-tank spent a year visiting nearly 100 Muslim religious institutions across the country.

They found extremist material for sale, either openly or secretly, in a quarter of the venues.

Hardline material discovered in Birmingham called, in particular, for the subjugation of women and alienation of moderate Muslims.

Office of National Statistics Fiddles Figures

The ONS press release headlines record emigration without mentioning record immigration.

In fact, their figures also show record foreign immigration of over half a million in 2006 with less than one fifth coming from the new Eastern European members of the EU. British emigration is also a record at 126,000, having doubled since 1997.

Commenting, Sir Andrew Green, Chairman of Migrationwatch said: 'These latest figures show that two thirds of yet another record level of arrivals come from outside the EU and therefore could and should be subject to much tighter controls.

'This gives the lie to claims that nothing effective can be done about immigration because of our membership of the EU.'

The figures also confirm the government's latest population projections for the UK of an extra 10 million people in the next 25 years.

A Government decision to 'outsource' applications for visas by foreigners coming to Britain is likely to lead to an increase in illegal immigration, while the government's capacity to remove them is close to zero.

'The government talk about 'managed migration' and then bring in schemes such as this which further erode what little remains of our border controls.

They made a terrible mistake over the scale of immigration from Eastern Europe. They might well be making a similar blunder by skimping on the visa system, especially before border controls are in place,' said Sir Andrew. He added that it was vital that swift and effective action be taken....

Issues of importance

The Labour Party has upset the Tories by stealing some of their policies. They have lowered inheritance tax and are tinkering with capital gains tax. These are the issues that the old gang concern themselves with as our immigrant-fuelled population spirals out of control.

Labour agrees with Dave Cameron's aim to "significantly reduce immigration from outside the EU." But they don't say how they will achieve this objective and they have no plans for deporting illegal entrants, bogus asylum seekers and convicted criminals.

We all know that the government needs to collect enough money to pay for health and social security, education, defence, the police and the rest of their commitments. Exactly how they collect the tax to pay for it all makes little difference to most people. One way or the other we will pay.

But as Black gangsters fight gun battles on the streets of London and Manchester, our politicians are discussing the relative merits of direct or indirect taxation. And as a bumper crop of Afghan heroin hits the streets they are boasting about who was first to call for tax cuts.

Our armed forces are engaged in Iraq and Afghanistan and they will soon be fighting America's next war in Iran.

These military adventures serve no British interest and only serve to attract terrorist reprisals. There was massive public opposition to the Iraq war but when parliament eventually discussed it Tony Blair didn't bother to attend. No doubt Gordon Brown will be just as contemptuous of public opinion and just as obedient to his masters.

Terrorist suspects cannot be deported because they claim that they would be persecuted at home. We admit people who are wanted by the police in their own countries and we are surprised when they turn on us and try to blow us to bits. And when we catch them our spineless government worries about the reaction of the immigrant community if they are prosecuted.

The utter uselessness of our parliamentary system cannot be overstated. MPs who take an interest in their constituents and try to do their best are a minority in all parties. Most of them are lawyers who tell lies with practiced fluency, toe the party line and hope for advancement. Those with a conscience usually quit after one term and leave the rest to scream abuse at each other like a mob of demented football hooligans.

Such are the men and women that we elect to decide issues of importance.

Malaysia firm's 'Muslim car' plan!

Malaysian car manufacturers Proton believes it may have found a huge gap in the market
And has announced plans to develop an "Islamic car", designed for Muslim motorists.
Proton is planning on teaming up with manufacturers in Iran and Turkey to create the unique vehicle.
The car could boast special features like a compass pointing to Mecca and a dedicated space to keep a copy of the Koran and a head scarf.
The idea came during a visit to the Middle East by a delegation of Malaysian politicians and businessmen.
Malaysian press reports say officials in Iran originally suggested the idea.
Safety features or fuel economy is one way of selling a car, but Proton thinks vehicles designed specifically for Muslims across the world represent a huge gap in the market.
Proton is the most dominant car on the streets in Malaysia but the company has suffered recently after the government allowed more foreign cars to be imported.
As they say "You couldn't make it up if you tried!"

WHAT A WAY TO TREAT EX-SERVICEMEN!

Injured soldiers who lost limbs in Iraq and Afghanistan have been jeered out of a public swimming pool.
Two women complained that the soldiers would scare children and that they should not be given precedence over paying customers. The unpleasant scenes broke out at Leatherhead Leisure Centre in Surrey as the servicemen, from Headley Court Military Hospital, were starting a weekly swimming therapy session. They have to use the 25-metre public pool because the hydro-pool at the defence rehabilitation centre is not big enough for swimming.
The incident has led to widespread condemnation. Admiral Lord Boyce, a former head of the Armed Forces, said the women should be "named and shamed". He said: "These people are beneath contempt and everything should be done to get their names and publish them in the press. "It is contemptible that people who have given their limbs for their country should be so abused when they are trying to get fit again."

UK Third In European HIV/AIDS Table

The rate of new cases of HIV/Aids in the UK is one of the highest in the European Union, according to a new report.
There were 8,925 newly diagnosed cases in the country last year - almost 149 cases per million inhabitants compared with an EU average of 67 cases per million. Ireland recorded 337 new cases last year - a rate of 80 cases per million residents.
The European Centre for Disease Prevention and Control (ECDC), announced the latest figures in Tallin, Estonia, where HIV/AIDS rates are by far the highest in the EU, at an average 504 reported new cases per million inhabitants last year.

Fury at council prayers ban

A Row has flared after it was revealed a mayor will scrap prayers before council meetings.
Robin Parker will do away with the decades-old tradition when he takes over as Rochdale's first citizen next year. He claims a collective act of worship has no place in a secular debating chamber - and says prayers can exclude politicians of other faiths. Critics accused him of `pushing God out of the public arena' and setting a dangerous precedent for the rest of the country.
Coun Parker - a confirmed Anglican who once trained for the Methodist ministry - said he was giving notice that no prayers would be said during his year in office.

BPP ORGANISER CHARGED!

Goole BPP leader Martyn Gilleard (left) has been arrested and charged with various offences under the Terrorism Act. Although this happened a few weeks ago, we have remained silent about it as we have not wanted to prejudice his case and because of the law of sub judice. Now that the situation Martyn is in has hit the headlines we are prepared to make this statement:

Martyn Gilleard is a trusted comrade and loyal member of the BPP. We knew the first day the 'raid' at Martyn's took place because the police nearly kicked the East Yorkshire BPP organiser's door down a couple of hours later. We believe a person is innocent until proven guilty and we reserve the right to make no further comment regarding Martyn's case until his trial is over.

That said, the BPP is proud to have Martyn as an active member and we will give him our full support whether or not he is convicted of the alleged charges.

Hold back the immigrant flood!

Just occasionally a series of events crystallises public opinion and transforms the political landscape. That is what has happened with immigration in the past fortnight. Three events stand out.

The crucial wake-up call was publication of the government's latest population forecasts. They were truly shocking. They showed that, if immigration continues at the level the government now assumes, the population of the UK will grow by more than 10m in the next 25 years - that is equivalent to 10 cities the size of Birmingham; 70% of the increase will be due to immigration.
The public were taken aback by these numbers. They are now beginning to realise that we face the most critical decision for a generation. Not since the referendum on the Common Market in the 1970s have we confronted a decision that will so greatly affect the lives of our children and grandchildren. Do we set about a massive building programme, constructing a virtual Birmingham every 2½ years and do we accept the fundamental changes to our society that will flow from immigration on this scale? Or do we take action now to cut immigration sharply?

Next was David Cameron's decision to speak about immigration for the first time in two years. His speech called for a "grown-up" debate, set out the dilemma in measured terms and outlined Conservative proposals for both an annual limit to immigration and, importantly, a substantial reduction in numbers.

It was not long before we had Labour and Conservatives competing to sound tough on immigration - an extraordinary transformation from the days when people hardly dared mention the topic for fear of being accused of racism.

The third event - if such it be - was the farcical episode when the government's count of the new jobs taken by foreigners changed three times in a day, ending up roughly double where it began. The outcome was another blow to confidence in the government's ability to manage immigration.

The genie is now well and truly out of the bottle. Public opinion is extremely strong - 80% disbelieve the government's honesty and competence; 75% want to see an annual limit; two-thirds fear that our culture is under threat. Only one in three believe that immigration brings economic benefit to Britain.

The immigration lobby claims there is little that the government can do. It is all down to some mysterious force called "globalisation". They are wrong. In fact, immigration to the UK took off in 1997. The prime cause was a series of policy errors by the present government. First, it abolished such border controls as it inherited. Then it trebled the number of work permits to 150,000 a year, plus dependants. Finally, it hopelessly miscalculated the inflow of east Europeans.

These policies can and should be reversed. The government could use its much-vaunted "points-based system" to throttle back sharply on work permits. The Australians, who have such a system, set a ceiling on immigration. So should we.

A ceiling would not apply to European Union citizens, but that is not a long-term problem. Before the recent enlargement, migration to and from the EU was roughly in balance and arrivals from the new east European members are now fairly steady at about 200,000 a year. The net inflow will decline as other EU members open their labour markets. Holland and half a dozen others have done so. The key countries, Austria, Germany and France, have kept their markets closed but restrictions have to be lifted in May 2011.

Added to that, as the economic level of east European countries approaches ours, there will be much less incentive to migrate. There was a blip for a few years when Spain, Portugal and Greece joined the EU but the net level of immigration has now fallen back.

Furthermore, those here will be more likely to go home. Many intend to spend several years here, save some money and then return to their families. As they do so, their numbers will counterbalance those still arriving so net immigration will fall.

Meanwhile, the pool of young people in eastern Europe will grow only slowly. The population of 18-year-olds in the two most populous countries, Poland and Romania is projected to fall by about 30% in the next 10 years.
What this adds up to is that, over a decade or so, net east European immigration to the UK is likely to decline substantially. The real long-term problem is immigration from outside the EU. Here populations are growing rapidly and huge numbers of young people are without work and prospects. It is vital that our immigration system should be a barrier to such people.
Failure to act now will mean that our society will be changed beyond recognition - and especially our cities. London is one-third immigrant and half of all babies born there have a foreign parent. Other large cities will follow. According to one academic study, the ethnic community in Britain will grow from 9% to 29% by mid-century.
There is every reason for concern. The Commission for Racial Equality's final report spoke frankly about growing segregation and of our society "fracturing", with bonds of solidarity across different groups weakening, and tensions between people increasing. These are serious warnings. The CRE was in denial about the role of mass immigration in all this but the rest of us can see it clearly.

We can now at last speak about the elephant in the room. But when will our political leaders respond to the deep anxieties that so many of us feel? And will they get down to some serious action before it is, indeed, too late?

Big Brother Britain:

Government and councils to spy on ALL our phones

LAWS CAN NOW BE ALTERED WITHOUT THE CONSENT OF PARLIAMENT!

Officials from the top of Government to lowly council officers will be given unprecedented powers to access details of every phone call in Britain under laws coming into force on November 27th 2007.

The new rules compel phone companies to retain information, however private, about all landline and mobile calls, and make them available to some 795 public bodies and quangos.

The move, enacted by the personal decree of Home Secretary Jacqui Smith, will give police and security services a right they have long demanded: to delve at will into the phone records of British citizens and businesses.

But the same powers will also be handed to the tax authorities, 475 local councils, and a host of other organisations, including the Food Standards Agency, the Department of Health, the Immigration Service, the Gaming Board and the Charity Commission. The initiative, formulated in the wake of the Madrid and London terrorist attacks of 2004 and 2005, was put forward as a vital tool in the fight against terrorism. However, civil liberties campaigners say the new powers amount to a 'free for all' for the State snooping on its citizens.

And they angrily questioned why the records were being made available to so many organisations. Similar provisions are being brought in across Europe, but under much tighter regulation. In Britain, say critics, private and sensitive information will inevitably fall into the wrong hands.

Records will detail precisely what calls are made, their time and duration, and the name and address of the registered user of the phone.

The files will even reveal where people are when they made mobile phone calls. By knowing which mast transmitted the signal, officials will be able to pinpoint the source of a call to within a few feet. This can even be used to track someone's route if, for example, they make a call from a moving car.

Files will also be kept on the sending and receipt of text messages.

By 2009 the Government plans to extend the rules to cover internet use: the websites we have visited, the people we have emailed and phone calls made over the net.

The new laws will make it a legal requirement for phone companies to keep records for at least a year, and to make them available to the authorities. Until now, companies have been reluctant to allow unfettered access to their files, citing data protection laws, although they have had a voluntary arrangement with law enforcement agencies since 2003. Many of the organisations granted access to the records already have systems allowing them to search phone-call databases over a computer link without needing staff at the phone company to intervene.

Police requests for phone records will need the approval of a superintendent or inspector, while council officials must get permission from the authority's assistant chief officer. Thousands of staff in other agencies will be legally entitled to retrieve the records once the request is approved by a senior official.

The new measures were implemented after the Home Secretary signed a 'statutory instrument' on July 26. The process allows the Government to alter laws without a full act of Parliament.

The move was nodded through the House of Lords two days earlier without a debate.

It puts into UK law a European Directive aimed at the 'investigation, detection and prosecution of serious crime'. But the British law allows the information to be used much more widely to combat all crimes, however minor.

The huge number of organisations allowed to access this data was attacked by Liberty, the civil liberties campaign group. Other organisations allowed to see the data include the Royal Navy Regulating Branch, the Atomic Energy Authority Constabulary, the Department of Trade and Industry, NHS Trusts, ambulance and fire services, the Department of Transport and the Department for the Environment.

A spokesman for Liberty said: 'Hundreds of bodies have been given the power to look at this highly sensitive information. It is yet another example of how greater and greater access is being given to information on our movements with little debate and little public accountability.

'It is a free for all. There is a lack of oversight of how and why public bodies are using these records. There is no public record of what they are using this information for.'

Tony Bunyan, of civil liberties group Statewatch, said: 'The retention of everyone's communications data is a momentous decision, one that should not be slipped through Parliament without anyone noticing.'

Last year, the voluntary arrangement allowed 439,000 searches of phone records. But the Government brought in legislation because the industry did not routinely keep all the information it wanted.

Different authorities will have different levels of access to the systems. Police and intelligence services will be able to see more detailed information than local authorities. And officials at NHS Trusts and ambulance and fire services can obtain the records only in rare cases when, for example, they are trying to save a patient's life.

The new system will be overseen by the Interception of Communications Commissioner, who also ensures security and intelligence services' phone taps are legal.

The commissioner, Sir Paul Kennedy, reports to the Prime Minister and already carries out random inspections of some agencies legally allowed to see phone records under the existing voluntary scheme. Last year inspectors visited 22 councils already making 'significant' use of their powers' to access phone records. A report said the results were 'variable', but within the law.

Privacy watchdog the Information Commissioner, which has responsibly for protecting personal information and policing the Data Protection Act had virtually no role in the new laws.

A spokeswoman said its only function was to ensure 'data security' at the phone companies, adding: 'We have no oversight role over the release of this information.'

The Home Office said there were safeguards to ensure the new law was being used properly. Every authority had a nominated senior member of staff who was legally responsible for the use the phone data was put to, 'the integrity of the process' and for 'reporting errors'.

A spokesman said: 'The most detailed level of data can be accessed only by law enforcement agencies such as the police. More basic access is available to local authority bodies such as trading standards and environmental health who can only use these powers to prevent and detect crime.'

A spokesman for the Local Government Association, which represents councils across England and Wales, said: 'Councils would only use these powers in circumstances such as benefit fraud, when the taxpayer is being ripped off for many thousands of pounds.'

He added that it was 'very unlikely' the powers would be used against non-payers of council tax or for parking fines 'as the sums involved are not sufficient to justify the use of this sort of information or the costs involved in applying it'.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Sir:
Five men went on trial recently in Turkey for allegedly killing three Christians.
The five are accused of killing a German man and two Turks at a Christian publishing house that produces Bibles in the southern city of Malatya. Security was tight at the court house in Malatya, where the trial opened. The April 18 killings - in which the victims were tied up and had their throats slit - drew international condemnation and added to Western concerns about whether the predominantly Muslim country bidding for EU membership could protect its religious minorities.
Christians make up just a fraction of one percent of Turkey's population of 71 million. Christian leaders have said they are worried that nationalists were stoking hostilities against non-Turks and non-Muslims by exploiting growing uncertainty over Turkey's place in the world.

Can you believe this new item I picked up recently?
Three suspected al Qaeda militants, including two sisters, beheaded their uncle and his wife, forcing the couple's children to watch, according to Iraqi police.
The killing came because the school guard Youssef al-Hayali was considered an infidel because he did not pray and wore western-style trousers. The militants, later arrested in Diyala province northwest of Baghdad, killed Hayali and his wife Zeinab Kamel at the all-boys school in Jalawlah.

I see that violent criminal and drug addict, Pete Doherty, is the hero of the "love music hate racism" brigade and the so-called "anti-fascists"
At the sinister Searchlight organisation who incite their "followers" to shout down, harass and abuse members and supporters of the legally constituted, democratic British People's Party, whose policies and manifestos have the support of the majority of the British public.
These "antifascists", along with assorted Labour funding Trades Unions, left wing newspapers and organisations, which include teachers and many others involved in education, hold Doherty up as a role model to our children.
Doherty is the foul-mouthed and talentless "front man" in a band called Babyshambles, which plays to audiences of young, impressionable people in events set up to promote drugs and degeneracy, the rights of immigrants over indigenous Britons, mass immigration, Marxist multiculturalism and the importing of huge numbers of immigrants to this country as cheap labour for greedy employers, to dispossess the native Britons and as votes for the Labour party. All in the name of "tolerance" and "diversity".

About our British police. Yes I agree they are becoming slaves to political correctness and ;anti-racism'. I feel the BPP - through Vanguard - should regularly ask White Britons not to join the army as they are dying for no good reason and this at a time when thousands of legal and illegal immigrants are flooding our towns and cities, often with hostile intentions.

Sir:
Following the news reports that a 'mistake' had been made and 300,000 more immigrants had entered Britain from new E.C. Countries than previously thought (and these are the ones we know about), the very next radio news item was that Britain needs to import foreign labour from India and China to fill the one million vacancies in I.T. That cannot be filled by British workers because Britain has not got enough sufficiently skilled people.
Are we supposed to believe that with all of Britain's achievements over the centuries, including an empire that brought law, government, medecine, indeed civilisation, to a third of the world, is on capable of producing people to work computers?
One can only imagine the hysterical cries of racism should it be reported that British workers had to work in India or China because the peoples of those countries were basically too thick to work with computers. (Is it not racist to suggest we need only workers from India or China; what about Africa? Is it being implied that Africans are not as intelligent as Indians or Chinese and therefore cannot work with computers!!!)
This is just another ruse by the people hell bent on destroying our country and culture, to condition the gullible masses that we need real mass immigration for the country to run effectively. A year or so ago Britain supposedly needed immigrants to work and pay taxes to provide pensions for the elderly. This lie has been silenced as more and more people wanted to know who would pay for these immigrants when they become pensioners. Previously to that, immigrants were to enrich our culture. Numerous race riots and suicide bombers have left people to question quite how we are being enriched.
With the true number of people not in employment in Britain running into millions - some estimates have put it as high as eight million - Britain simply does not need more immigrants.
With the mounting pressure on Britain's infrastructure it makes sound economic sense to send those already here back to where they came from, not bring even more here.

SECURITY WARNING
We have received a warning from the London Ambulance Service of activities in their area. Whilst the below behaviour is not common place in this area I have spoken to Greater Manchester Police and their risk assessment of the action is to circulate it as a potential.
The London Ambulance service have units closely associated with the Police based in South London who are basically Fighting Gang Crimes. The street gangs in London (particularily South London at present)but it is sure to spread , have initiation tasks which new gang members have to carry out before they are admitted to the gang.
The latest craze is to drive at night without lights on their cars, The first person who flashes them , points , or beeps their horn at them has to be followed by the new potential gang member in their car and has to fire a shot into their vehicle with no reguards as to who is inside.
Our official instruction is that if we see a vehicle with no lights on we are NOT ro flash it etc and our advice is to friends and family is that you should ignore any vehicles you see without lights, I would ask that you pass this info on to all your family and friends and colleagues and who knows , it may save a life.

Yours  * name hidden .

Well when I read that this morning with my work colleagues we were all boiling and have agreed as comrades that we will not give in to these stupid gangsters and that in a life or death situation like the above mentioned our vehicles will become our weapons of self defence.

UK TV EXPOSE OF ISLAMIC MILITANTS - NO CHARGES TO BE BROUGHT

Channel 4 have been exonerated by the broadcasting watchdog OFCOM over the transmission of the Dispatches programme Undercover Mosque.

The programme exposed the preaching of extremism and hatred in a number of British mosques, several of them supposedly 'moderate' and mainstream. In Britain's irrational society those preachers, who were inciting hatred against homosexuals, Jews, women and non-Muslims, would have been arrested and prosecuted. However in PC Britain run by liberal-leftists the issues which occured after the programme was broadcast is another example of how our masters appease radical Muslims at every available opportunity. (Had it been White Nationalists they WOULD have been prosecuted and persecuted!)

First, West Midlands police investigated whether any offences had been committed at these mosques and presented their findings to the Crown Prosecution Service. The CPS decided there was insufficient evidence to bring charges against anybody. Then the West Midlands police decided that the real villains of the piece were the makers of the Dispatches programme itself for stirring up racial hatred.

This decision was dismissed by the CPS. Undaunted in its determination to find the Dispatches team guilty of something, the police then referred the programme to the broadcasting regulator Ofcom, claiming that it had distorted various speakers' comments, edited material in a manner likely to undermine community cohesion and was likely to undermine feelings of public reassurance and safety of those communities in the West Midlands for which the Chief Constable has a responsibility.

Now Ofcom has robustly rejected all these absurd charges and concluded:

"Undercover Mosque was a legitimate investigation, uncovering matters of important public interest. Ofcom found no evidence that the broadcaster had misled the audience or that the programme was likely to encourage or incite criminal activity. On the evidence (including untransmitted footage and scripts), Ofcom found that the broadcaster had accurately represented the material it had gathered and dealt with the subject matter responsibly and in context. "

For once, the Dispatches programme performed a public service in exposing sources of the kind of extremism that threatens the safety and security of this country (unlike their usual hatchet-jobs on British Nationalists). For the police to turn on the broadcasters is deeply sinister and against the public interest. As Channel Four said after the ruling, the police action had given legitimacy to people preaching a message of hate.

The West Midlands police appear to have turned themselves into a mouthpiece for Islamists trying to shut down legitimate and necessary debate. The idea that the police should believe that 'community cohesion' in other words the sensitivities of the Muslim community – should trump the need to identify those endangering not only the cohesion but the security of the whole country suggests that the police have totally lost the plot here. There is also something badly wrong with a system which is unable to act against those identified on this programme inciting hatred in this way.

FAT CAT PEERS FIDDLE THE TAXPAYER

Peers exploit loophole to claim £48k a year expenses - at YOUR expense!

Parliamentary rules mean members of the House of Lords can claim back up to £308 (!) a day for travel, meals and accommodation while performing their duties.

As they do not receive a salary, the money is intended to cover their costs and is not eligible for tax.

However, under the system they do not have to submit receipts to prove their outlay.

It was reported that nearly two thirds of peers are automatically claiming the maximum amount nearly every time they visit the Lords.

Some 259 of the 550 Lords who applied for "day subsistence" - a £78.50 payment for meals and taxis - claimed the maximum amount at least 95 per cent of the time.

Of the 406 peers who claim "overnight subsistence" for hotels - worth £159.50 a day - 272 claimed the maximum at least 95 per cent of the time.

And 338 of the 514 Lords who claim office expenses - worth £69 a day - claimed the maximum on nearly all occasions.

It was reported that several lords admitted that they saw the expenses as an allowance and collecting the full amount was routine.

Every day we open our papers or turn on the TV to hear of child-molesters and other assorted paedophiles scum receiving pitifully short sentences from our so-called justice system. These perverts are brought before the courts charged with such depraved offences as distributing child porn, sexual abuse of kids, child rape and baby murder. For these crimes they usually receive sentences ranging from slap down to community service, from suspended sentences to a few months in prison's segregation wing or for those convicted of murdering our children, a little sentence meaning a few years in a cosy prison cell and then they're released back into our communities.

WE DEMAND JUSTICE AND SAY:

STAND BY LOYAL ULSTER!

Loyal Ulster is under threat! A conspiracy by the 'British' and Irish governments, hand in hand with the Marxist IRA, is endangering the status of Northern Ireland as part of Great Britain!

The aim of the murdering IRA and their fellow Irish Republican travellers is to create a single state of Ireland ruled by Dublin by using any means at their disposal. They are experts at indiscriminately murdering innocent people by the bomb and the bullet. Contrary to the conditions of the so-called 'peace treaty' known as the 'Good Friday Agreement' the IRA are still in existence and their terror programme is still in operation. Their members are once again on our streets continuing their campaign of hate against the British people of Ulster. All these red terrorists should have received the death penalty for their crimes and hung like common criminals. To those who will say that Loyalist prisoners have also been released, we state that those loyal Britons should not have been imprisoned in the first place. Would any other country jail its citizens for fighting to defend it from attack by a foreign power? In Britain though, those standing up for our nation are condemned by both the corrupt politicians in power and by the pro-Republican media, most of whose journalists subscribe to the politics of Karl Marx like their comrades in the IRA.

Ulster is, and must always remain, British. Those people currently resident in Northern Ireland who refuse to renounce allegiance to the Irish Republic and do not consider themselves British should lose their British Citizenship and, as a result, their automatic right to live on British soil. This would enable all IRA activists and their supporters to be removed permanently from the UK.

The White Nationalist Party supports the right of the British people of Ulster to maintain their British heritage within the United Kingdom.

FREEDOM? WHAT FREEDOM?

For hundreds of years freedom of speech has been the right of every honest British Man and woman. Now that birthright has been taken from you.

Labour and Conservative governments have passed Race Laws and Public Order laws which forbid full and free discussion of the questions of race and immigration in Britain. They know their precious multiracial Britain is a DISASTER - so they are shutting up the voices of dissent by dragging honest White patriots before their law courts and fining or jailing them for the most trivial offences!

Are you ANGRY about the way free speech has been taken away from you? Are you ANGRY that you can no longer speak about the crisis mass immigration and the floods of asylum seekers have brought to this country? Are you ANGRY that race riots are tearing up towns such as Oldham, Burnley and Bradford and you can't say a thing about it?

You should be!

WARNING!

Begas 'Asylum Seekers' are swamping YOUR area

"We hear reports back home of how good life is in Britain. It will be a better place for my wives. But the most important thing is for my children to get a good education."

Above: All Alli began "asylum seeker" working in France for entry to Britain with his two wives, sister and six children

Every day of every year, thousands of immigrants, a lot of them illegal, swarm into Britain, many of them seeking the easy comforts of free benefits. All funded by YOU - the British taxpayer! Now a new flood has started. Tens of thousands of "asylum seekers", supposedly fleeing oppression in their own countries but in many cases just getting a free ride on our economy, are coming into this country from Albania, Kosovo and from dozens of Third World countries. Our economy can not bear the strain of all these new benefit seekers, sorry, "asylum seekers" - many of them bogus.

The present government, which doesn't give a damn about the real British people, are turning out these fake refugees into many different areas of Britain and yours will be one of them! These bogus "refugees" and illegal immigrants are now housed, at YOUR expense, in houses courtesy of your local council. They have been housed ahead of ordinary Britons who been on the waiting lists for years. They are claiming Social Security benefits, all paid for by us, whilst our old folk freeze to death because they can't afford to pay their fuel bills and people are mugged every from to get their money or gadgets stolen from their homes to pay for their mobile phones, new furniture - you name it, they've got it - ALL FREE! Even working people find it hard to afford these luxuries yet these people are getting it all on top of the usual child benefit, housing benefit and monster cash payments from the DSS. Sod much Britain - it's a joke but the White working people, whose ancestors fought and died for this country, aren't laughing as they pay for these "refugees" to live a life of luxury!

Only a firm policy that will STOP IMMIGRATION and begin a programme of humane, phased REPATRIATION can save Britain from this floodtide. This isn't a policy of "racial hatred", it is a policy of COMMON SENSE!

POPULISM OR WHITE NATIONALISM? THE CHOICE IS YOURS!

Although the BPP does not wish to be continually taking up the cudgels against other Nationalist parties (we never for instance criticise the NF), we feel that sometimes we MUST take issue with the 'National Populists' who are currently riding high on some electoral success.

Why must we take issue? Because we know that many, many true White Nationalists are hanging on the fence and waiting to see exactly which way the ball will bounce.

Don't misread this article as sour grapes from the BPP against the National Populists. We feel it is our DUTY to underscore the terrible mistakes and the completely wrong direction they are going. The fence sitters must get off the fence and come to a party such as ourselves where their conscience and real loyalty lies.

The BPP is just over two years old and we have made great strides forward in that time, even though the going has been and is tough at times. Members are coming in steadily and we have a national organisational structure and membership now running into hundreds.

Apart from building the BPP we have another important task and that is to become THE key British Nationalist organisation in Britain. We have already absorbed a number of smaller groups who have been most welcome. We wish in the longer term to absorb ALL the radical nationalists in Britain in one super organisation that brings together every strand of racial/folkish activist and supporter throughout the United Kingdom.

There is more but we think we have painted a pretty good picture of what is happening. National Populism has been tried before, a good example being when the National Party caused a massive split in the NF in the 1970's. The NP took two council seats in Blackburn and it looked like Populism was the way. Meanwhile the NF continued its mass marches and demos as well as elections and whilst the NP soon withered away, the NF went on from strength to strength!

In Europe, Le Pen in France and Haider in Austria, who the British Populists ape have both failed miserably after the usual initial success. Haider has lost over 80% of his members in the two years to the Austrian Conservatives. These organisations attract fair weather patriots who love the shirt, tie and briefcase image (though we admit the BPP owns a few suits too!). The moment the chips are down and the New World Order street troops of the left go on the offensive, these March Violet patriots melt away very quickly.

Moving more and more to respectability means moving more and more to compromising with the hated System. Logically, complete respectability could be attained by dropping ALL controversial policies and going along with the sick liberal consensus. Eventually you would have to embrace the multi-ethnic ethos in all its forms and then you would have arrived. Arrived where? You would have become a Populist part of the System itself.

The BPP makes no bones about the fact that we are building for LEGAL revolution because our policies, ideas and organisation are so radical that our victory would mean a complete overturning of the Sick Society, to be replaced by a truly and morally right White Nationalist state guaranteeing, as the Fourteen Words state, the future existence of our White people.

Comrades the choice is yours! Fence sit and support the National Populists or follow where your hearts and minds really dictate you should go - join us and become a real White Nationalist!

What the National Populists are doing:-

- Rejecting street activism and street action
- Rejecting facing up to the red mobs who given half a chance would dominate the non-parliamentary political scene
- Soft peddling on homosexuality which we utterly condemn
- Recognising the State of Israel which we refuse to recognise as a legal state
- Dropping repatriation of non-Whites under a phased humane repatriation policy
- Accepting that Britain is now and will forever be a multi-racial country
- Standing candidates and accepting members who are multi-racialists
- Establishing ethnic liaison committees with Hindus and Sikhs
- Dropping the vital investigation into the real truth about the Holocaust which is used to constantly browbeat White Nationalists
- Using the language of the Anti-Nazi League to attack organisations such as the BPP
- Moving into the Old Gang System rather than opposing it and building up an alternative Nationalist Society as we are doing
- Fooling themselves into thinking that a "respectable" approach will actually stop ZOG media attacks and they being branded "Nazis"
- Trying for small electoral successes AT ANY COST to ideals and beliefs

New law could make "gay" jokes illegal

The right to crack jokes or be rude about homosexuals could fall victim to new government laws to stamp out "homophobic" behaviour, Rowan Atkinson, the Blackadder star warned yesterday.

'"gay"' pride soon to be compulsory by law? YES!!!

Atkinson, who mounted a successful campaign in 2004 to water down legislation aimed at criminalising expressions of religious hatred, has returned to the fray to defend the art of "gay" leg-pulling. His concern is that Labour ministers are so obsessed with creating laws to stop people being rude about each other that they are putting in danger the right to free speech and, equally dear to his heart, the comedian's craft.

In a letter to a newspaper he accused ministers of filling their legislative programme with measures that have "serious implications for freedom of speech, humour and creative expression".

Atkinson was referring to measures in the Criminal Justice Bill, currently passing through Parliament, which could mean people who stir up hatred against homosexuals being put in prison for up to seven years.

He said the Government measures, which could be expanded to cover hatred against disabled or transgendered people, seemed to be "infinitely extendable". "Witness the fact that the Government has invited two additional groups - the disabled and transsexuals - to 'make the case' for the proposed legislation to be extended to them.

"I am sure that they could make a very good case, as indeed could all those who can claim that they cannot help being the way they are. Men, for example, or women. Or people with big ears."

Atkinson added: "The devil, as always, will be in the detail but the casual ease which some people move from finding something offensive to wishing to declare it criminal - and are then able to find factions within government to aid their ambitions - is truly depressing." (well said Rowan Atkinson!)

Jack Straw, the Justice Secretary, has told MPs that such fears are unfounded because he will shortly introduce an amendment to the Bill ensuring that cases can be pursued only when the offending words are specifically intended to pose a threat and are not merely humorous, mocking or abusive.

As with an eventual compromise deal struck over the Religious Hatred Bill, there will also be a specific clause to protect the right to freedom of speech.

Ministers have firmly dismissed as unfounded claims that playground insults or jokes about homosexuals could be caught by the new offence.

Chris Bryant, the openly homosexual Labour MP, said Mr Atkinson should relax because the right to make jokes about homosexuals would remain. "I think it is perfectly possible to create a distinction in law between incitement to hatred and having a laugh," he said.

Lord Lester, the Liberal Democrat peer who helped draft the compromise wording on the religious hatred law, said it was clear that "politically incorrect jokes at the expense of "gay" people" should not be banned.

BPP COMMENT: Well though it's not law yet - criticising queers IS going to be illegal in 2008! Do not doubt it. The BPP will continue to oppose this, to us, unnatural practice and work towards Homosexuality (banned BY LAW until 1967) becoming BY LAW illegal again. Will campaigning for a the old Homosexual Law be deemed illegal? Police State - another notch!

THE BPP HAS ARRIVED IN LONDON

Sunday the 18th of November saw the British People's Party's growing strength in our capital city. Around fifty White Nationalists gathered at a North London venue to hear BPP speakers on the theme of "White Nationalist Unity".

BPP/BNP/NF and BM members (many who are also BPP members too) gave a warm welcome to four speakers. The meeting was chaired by National Organiser of the BPP – Peter Williamson who also gave a heartfelt speech on the need for strength through unity. The next speaker was Jill, recently expelled from the BNP and who was until that time Brighton Organiser of the BNP. Jill spoke about the need for toughness and courage and said she felt in this room today a true feeling of comradeship. The BPP welcome Jill's support. Peter then conducted a fund raising auction which raised £45.00 towards funds.

After a short interval, the meeting reassembled and the next speaker, 82 years old Frank Walsh and BPP member gave a riveting speech on the madness this country has descended too. Frank received a standing ovation for this.

The last speaker was BPP National Inspector – Eddy Morrison who stressed the importance of sticking firmly to White Nationalism and the 14 Words. Eddy gave a resume of his 40 years in the struggle for White Nationalism and finished and the upbeat slogan "No matter what they throw against us, WE WILL WIN!"

The BPP literature table did brisk business with 100 copies of WHITE NATIONALIST being sold. "Mad Dogs and Englishman" manned a stall with a great selection of nationalist DVD's. Their latest catalogue will be mailed out with the next BPP bulletin.

Peter then called for a collection which raised over £125.00 towards BPP general funds and the cost of the room hire.

BPP HQ extends its thanks especially to Eddie S. - the Greater London BPP Regional Organiser who made a great day possible.

Sad reflections of an old soldier...

Many times I have heard the phrase 'life is too short' and when you have lived more of your life than you have left to live one is inclined to agree. I have got to an age where I have to seriously consider whether I am too old to take up the violin. I don't feel old; my brain is that of a teenager but the all-consuming drive to own 'stuff' and to impress the opposite sex has gone. That is a good thing as I now consider that youthful impulse no more than a trivial distraction, being immaterial and of no consequence to ones future. That is the crutch or heavy baggage that one unknowingly carries in their early years.

I served in the British army when Stalin was in power in Russia, when Franco was in charge of Spain, Tito was ruling a 'United' Yugoslavia, Chiang Kai Shek was being driven from mainland China into Taiwan and it was another 12 years before the Berlin Wall went up. I was a British soldier defending England, its freedom and its way of life, who the hell would I be defending now?

Things change very quickly. I lived in an England when her empire was beginning to crumble. Time passes, now its own children are beginning to lose their sense of racial identity, and indeed the whole country is made to feel guilty of its proud history and ethnic uniqueness and is tragically losing its sense of purpose and direction.

Our leader's talk of embracing British and British-ness, they tell us we are not English any more and very shortly we will even cease to be British and become European. The England as I knew it will be no more; all this change has occurred in one person's terrifyingly short lifetime.

In my youth my country did not spawn 'home grown' terrorists, the person sitting next to me on the bus was English so was the bus conductor and the driver. Stop and think; what or who caused these catastrophic negative social changes to our once homogeneous society? It was not the people; it was our traitorous narcissistic politicians in collusion with the power hungry, corrupt European federalists.

When my son reaches my age what will my country resemble? If nothing changes the descent into a European authoritarian autocracy will be total and absolute and the England I defended will be no more, the England my uncle died for will be unrecognisable and the England my grandfather God rest his soul, who fought in the Boxer Wars, would be horrified.

The politicians are still telling the grubby peasants they have the country and its peoples best interests at heart at the same time they are breaking up what was once a 'United' Kingdom and eroding the very fabric of a proud nation who feared no-one, who kowtowed to no-one and most certainly did not allow a totally foreign or exotic Eastern culture to affect, influence, dictate, threaten its security, its way of life or its future, and to change the English character of many of its major cities. What total screaming madness is this?

What have our government done for its own people you might ask? Well they have put in place legal mechanisms to threaten and to silence its own people with incarceration if they dare object to this horror.

This is the country I gave the best years of my youth for. I will make doubly certain that my son does not waste his youth as I did, sacrificing his immature youthful years believing in the lies of 'home grown' renegade, lying, and treasonous bloody impostors.

The British People's Party ask: Just what did the British dead of two world wars actually fight and die for?

Queen Elizabeth the Last

By Cathie Parker-Brown

In 1990 a referendum was held in Australia for the people to decide whether or not Australia should become a republic. At the moment their Head of State is the Queen of Australia who is the Queen of England. In Australia she is represented by the Governor-General who is appointed by the Prime Minister. Therefore, the Australian people currently have no say in who is their Head of State.

Queen Elizabeth II - presiding over the end of British sovereignty.

The referendum was decided with a NO vote. Many people who voted for a republic complained about the confusion of the wording of the referendum. Be that as it may, Australia rejected the democratic choice of becoming a republic. A further argument for a republic was that England had forsaken its traditional trading partners, the commonwealth, and opted to join a European federation, the EU.

Great Britain does not have the luxury of self government; it is ruled by consensus by unelected Kommissars from a number of European counties. It has to comply with all the treaties it has signed with this unelected union on pain of suspension, thus losing its voting rights and becomes just an observer. I repeat, at this point the UK would have no voting powers within this consensus. It will only be allowed back to the table when it becomes subservient to the union and abides by the treaties it has previously signed.

In the past, loyalty to the state and to the Monarchy was total. This held true until the early fifties when The UK entered Europe. At this point I would like to debate the Queens position in this treason.

The EU will sign the 6th and final EU treaty in May 2009; the Treaty of Berlin. The location of the signing should not be lost on the people of the UK. As usual our Queen and our politicians will be the first in the queue with their signatures. This treaty adopts the EU constitution which after 37 years of treaties will finally replace the nation of Britain with the new European Union nation. A king cannot rule without a kingdom!

She has in the past been presented with a million signature petition to call on the prime minister to hold a referendum on a peoples democratic choice of remaining in the EU, she has ignored it. The era of the Elizabeth the First was referred to as the Golden Age, the current Elizabeth; Elizabeth the Last, in which history will record as the Dark Age, at her coronation swore allegiance to her country and her people. She has committed treason, her allegiance is with Europe not with this country, she is a citizen of Brussels.

The oath of office: Will you solemnly promise and swear to govern the Peoples of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, Canada, Australia, New Zealand,

Queen: I solemnly promise so to do.

She has broken that oath, she does not govern this country, but the unelected leaders and unelected MEP's of the European Union do. She has put her signature to all the treaties, passing governance of the UK to Brussels. Our Queen has ILLEGALLY signed six EU treaties; it's these treaties that one by one have forced Britain to harmonize their laws with the EU over the last 34 years, the emerging police state is the result.

The Independent, Times and Lib-Dem party all recognize we now live in an as yet authoritarian police state, but conceal the fact its EU Legislation enacted by Westminster that is building it. In addition to the EU's laws and directives, 111,000 EU regulations have been passed on our government, 3,500 new ones arrive each year

It is unlikely there will be another British general election. The next one does not have to be held until the 5th May 2010, a whole year too late. Gordon Brown could be Britain's last PM. We also lose the nation of England and our 48 counties and it's the end of the Monarchy.

The question that must be asked is why won't the government hold a referendum on so important a matter that determines who actually governs this country. The answer is twofold, we are so far into Europe it would be extremely difficult to extricate ourselves and secondly the government knows that a referendum on whether we continue as a member of the European Union will be soundly defeated. Our Queen and our Government would have got away with treason. History shows that in the past traitors have been beheaded for far less!

IF ONLY WE COULD BRING BACK QUEEN ELIZABETH THE FIRST!

THE SQUIRREL AND THE GRASSHOPPER – A FABLE?

REST OF THE WORLD VERSION

The squirrel works hard in the withering heat all summer long, building and improving his house and laying up supplies for the winter.
The grasshopper thinks he's a fool, and laughs and dances and plays the summer away.
Come winter, the squirrel is warm and well fed.
The shivering grasshopper has no food or shelter, so he dies out in the cold.

THE END

THE BRITISH VERSION

The squirrel works hard in the withering heat all summer long, building his house and laying up supplies for the winter.
The grasshopper thinks he's a fool, and laughs and dances and plays the summer away.
Come winter, the squirrel is warm and well fed.
A social worker finds the shivering grasshopper, calls a press conference and demands to know why the squirrel should be allowed to be warm and well fed while others less fortunate, like the grasshopper, are cold and starving.
The DHSS shows up to provide live coverage of the shivering grasshopper; with cuts to a video of the squirrel in his comfortable warm home with a table laden with food.
The British media informs people that they should be ashamed that in a country of such wealth, this poor grasshopper is allowed to suffer so while others have plenty.
The Marxist New Labour Party, Commission for Grasshopper Equality, Animal Rights and The Grasshopper Housing Commission of Britain demonstrate in front of the squirrel's house.
The BBC, interrupting a cultural festival special from Lerwick with breaking news, broadcasts a multi cultural choir singing "We Shall Overcome".
Ken Livingstone rants in an interview with a lefty media hack that the squirrel got rich off the backs of grasshoppers, and calls for an immediate tax rise on the squirrel to make him pay his "fair share" and increases the charge for squirrels to enter London city centre.
In response to pressure from the media, the Government drafts the Economic Equity and Grasshopper Anti Discrimination Act, retroactive to the beginning of the summer. The squirrel's taxes are re-assessed. He is taken to court and fined for failing to hire grasshoppers as builders, for the work he was doing on his home and an additional fine for contempt when he told the court the grasshopper did not want to work.
The grasshopper is provided with a Housing Commission house, financial aid to furnish it and an account with a local taxi firm to ensure he can be socially mobile. The squirrel's food is seized and re-distributed to the more needy members of society - in this case the grasshopper.
Without enough money to buy more food, to pay the fine and his newly imposed retroactive taxes, the squirrel has to downsize and start building a new home. The local authority takes over his old home and utilises it as a temporary home for asylum seeking cats who had hijacked a plane to get to Britain as they had to share their country of origin with mice. On arrival they tried to blow up the airport because of Britons' apparent love of dogs.
The cats had been arrested for the international offence of hijacking and attempted bombing but were immediately released because the police fed them pilchards instead of salmon whilst in custody. Initial moves to make then return them to their own country were abandoned because it was feared they would face death by the mice. The cats devise and start a scam to obtain money from people's credit cards.
A Newsnight special shows the grasshopper finishing up the last of the squirrel's food, though spring is still months away, while the council house he is in, crumbles around him because he hasn't bothered to maintain it.
He is shown to be taking drugs. Inadequate government funding is blamed for the grasshopper's drug "Illness".

The cats seek recompense in the British courts for their treatment since arrival in Britain.
The grasshopper gets arrested for stabbing an old dog during a burglary to get money for his drugs habit. He is imprisoned but released immediately because he has been in custody for a few weeks. He is placed in the care of the probation service to monitor and supervise him.
Within a few weeks he has killed a guinea pig in a botched robbery.
A commission of enquiry, that will eventually cost £10 million and state the obvious, is set up. Additional money is put into funding a drug rehabilitation scheme for grasshoppers. Legal aid for lawyers representing asylum seekers is increased. The asylum seeking cats are praised by the government for enriching Britain's multicultural diversity and dogs are criticised by the government for failing to befriend the cats.
The grasshopper dies of a drug overdose. The usual sections of the press blame it on the obvious failure of government to address the root causes of despair arising from social inequity and his traumatic experience of prison. They call for the resignation of a minister.
The cats are paid £1 million each because their rights were infringed when the government failed to inform them there were mice in Britain.

The squirrel, the dogs and the victims of the hijacking, the bombing, the burglaries and robberies have to pay an additional percentage on their credit cards to cover losses, their taxes are increased to pay for law and order, and they are told that they will have to work beyond 65 because of a shortfall in government funds.

THE END (or is it?)

Grasshoppers - how many more millions to come?

How many live in Britain?

Having recently visited Ulster, I wish to express a view on the new improved multi-racial society which has, along with many thousands of refugees, immigrants, and asylum seekers been foisted upon the indigenous population.

While the liberal, politically correct propagandist silences opposition utilising the dreaded "racist" smear seeking to convince the public of the cultural "benefits" of uncontrolled immigration, the numbers of foreign nationals facing extremely serious charges before the courts paint a very different & extremely disturbing picture.

A trip to any hospital, beds & services occupied by growing numbers of foreigners, naturally at the expense of locals. And whilst social housing is virtually denied to local folk, African families, newly arrived have no such accommodation considerations.

On street level we now encounter Bosnian Muslims serenading pre-Christmas shoppers with Macedonia's merry melodies, Romanian gypsy children begging in shift patterns along with the Albanian Big Issue seller, hoping to prick the conscience of a wary & apathetic public.

With the uninvited influx of such types comes political power, the ethnic China woman, whose proctorial and self-important opinions are positively megalomaniacal, dictating to locals as to when & where they may be permitted to display their culture. Enriching or destroying the unique heritage & culture of our people?

Big business & liberal interests point to a mythical economic interest of an increased work pool, or more precisely, people who may be economically exploited in below NMW jobs in effect denying our own unemployed the prospect of proper, profitable employment. There may be limited placement for linguists and translators in the army of social workers assigned to ensure many nationalities are included in the social, health & housing benefits provided by a decreasing public purse.

I took time in a larger town to look at the war memorial, a tribute to those who gave their all in conflicts to ensure our Nation's freedom from foreign invasion, the legacy of which is largely forgotten and completely unknown to a generation of foreigners swarming the industrious town centre.

Multi-ethnic societies, as the French, American & UK experiences prove conclusively, do not work - the social values, harmony and community spirit of a long gone mono-ethnic society are destroyed in an economic wasteland of drugs, violence & mutual hatred. Animosity, the product of a liberal, racially blind experiment now threatened by the resident spectre of militant Islam.

The British People's Party decry this enforced ethnic holocaust along with a wholly corrupt Westminster which effectively gags criticism of national decline & ruination through successive race and public order acts. In effect the BPP represent the views of an increasing number of alienated Britons.

A multi-ethnic Ulster? Another failed multi-racial experiment conceived in the minds of politicians divorced from both reality and any concept of the misery brought to their constituents compelled to an existence in an impoverished, though culturally diverse society - silent victims of what even the charlatans in government concede to be a crisis beyond their control.

NATIONALIST FILMS WE RECOMMEND

If you are a White Nationalist then these are 'must see' films. All are available form various sources on DVD. We are not listing them in order of importance but for a good night in then give them a try:-

Excalibur - a few years old now but one of the best films on the Arthurian Legend

The Thirteenth Warrior - Omar Sharif stars in a great retelling of the Beowulf Saga

1984- the best version of this is the one made in 1984 starring Richard Burton and John Hurt

The Siege of Ruby Ridge - true to life version of how the FBI and ATF killed and hounded White patriots

Arlington Road - a clever and tense film of a right wing plot in America

CSA - Confederate States of America - what would have happened if the Confederacy had won the American Civil War - a thought provoking and humorous film

Downfall - one of the few films that shows Hitler was not a raving madman but by that stage of the war quite a frail human being physically. The Battle of Berlin is reproduced very well.

Lord of the Rings - three DVD set covering Tolkein's epic work. Brilliantly done and already coming under fire from the liberal consensus as having 'racist undertones'

The Birth of a Nation - silent classic film about the Civil War by D.W Griffiths (available from BPP merchandise)

Zulu - the classic film of British heroism (avoid Zulu dawn which is a classic liberal apologist film)

Triumph of the Will - probably the best propaganda film ever made (available from BPP merchandise)

Beowulf - the latest version of the Beowulf saga. It looks good but we have yet to view it. We shall be carrying a full review of the film in the January 2008 Vanguard.

This is of course not an exhaustive list of all the films which are of interest to White Nationalists. If you have any to add dear reader or wish to submit a film review, then send it to us at Vanguard at the usual address.

BPP DVDS

There are now two BPP DVD's in our merchandising section. The first if of the First BPP Party Congress which was held in Leeds on the 24th October. The second is of the 18th November BPP Central London meeting. Each DVD costs £5.00 including postage. Get both now from:- BPP, BM Box 5581, London WC1N 3XX

WHY YOU SHOULD JOIN THE BPP

In Britain today we have a myriad of small parties and groups competing for your membership and this includes ourselves the British People's Party. Some of these smaller groups are serious and have many dedicated patriots amongst them, a few are a joke and one has just recently packed up shop completely.

Right through the history of British Nationalism, there have always been two strands of tradition within the National Movement. One has been Populist and other has been White Nationalist.

During the days of the National Front, this two-stream phenomenon usually got on as uneasy bedfellows but more often than not resulted in massive splits, which along with an all-out attack by the ZOG controlled media and outright terror on the streets from the Red Front in the shape of the Anti-Nazi League resulted in the demise of the NF.

The BNP when first founded in 1982 when the New National Front changed its name, was in fact right up to 1999 the main movement which could through all that period be described as White Nationalist.

In 1999, with the victory of Nick Griffin, the BNP over the last few years has rejected White Nationalism and now firmly treads the National Populist path. The White Nationalists are leaving and the Populists, especially the UKIP type of Tory are joining. The face of the BNP has we founders knew it has now changed beyond all recognition.

We will give those who now lead the BNP the benefit of the doubt and regard them as experimenting (yet again) with the Populist Path. Of course should they be successful and win then Britain would be a better place for it. National Populism, though it is not White Nationalism, would be a great improvement on the Liberal-Marxist vpseudo-democracy which now dominates us.

The BPP does not believe in mud slinging and no matter what our personal differences with the leadership of the BNP, we must acknowledge that they are in fact carrying on the old two-stream tradition of Populism rather than the stricter White Nationalist ideology.

However we White Nationalists now no longer welcome within the BNP are not just going to sink into oblivion. White Nationalism as a creed lives on and so must a Movement to carry that creed.

Within the BNP are a small group of hardliners still fighting a rearguard action to reverse the ideology and strategy laid down by Nick Griffin. This might have had a slight chance whilst John Tyndall was alive but with his death and the end of his great magazine SPEARHEAD, the last hope of transforming the BNP back into a White Nationalist party was gone. We say to those still within the BNP who still strive against the current to change things that they are wasting valuable and precious time – they would be a far better position to build White Nationalism OUTSIDE of the BNP.

In effect we in the BPP have to acknowledge that the two competing streams within British Nationalism can never co-exist within one movement. That is why, recognising that the BNP under Mr. Griffin wishes to pursue their chosen path, we say let them do so and good luck to them. No character assassination or negative propaganda from the White Nationalists outside the BNP is going to change it one jot and in fact only further fuels the hatred and rancour far too endemic within British Nationalism.

No – what is needed is a brave recognition that the two streams are now widely separated by belief and tactics as well as long term strategy and instead of wasting time, effort and money on fruitless attacks against the BNP, we must direct ALL our energies into building a White Nationalist alternative, both for those who are leaving the Populist stream, but mostly for those thousands of White Nationalists in the United Kingdom who are now drifting either from one ineffective group to another or WORSE STILL are in danger of dropping out of the fight altogether!

The British People's Party – a little over two years old – is determined that the true creed of White Nationalism is properly represented and calls on all these other groups and the many, many, good comrades currently doing little or nothing, to join us and construct a really effective White Nationalist Movement with a real chance of power.

The two streams will we think always be there, it is up to us to provide the White Nationalist viewpoint with a credible and powerful alternative. A myriad of fragmented groups is not the answer – so we call upon all true White Nationalists to join with us, the vanguard front-fighters of White Nationalism, in the BPP.

Bear the guilt

Time to hear an apology for the Great Terror in the Soviet Union

This seems to be historic guilt time. Germany just opened a new memorial to the so-called Jewish victims of Nazi persecution. Armenians demand Turkey admit Ottoman-era massacres were genocide. Japan is being blasted anew for denying wartime atrocities.

Yet the greatest crime in modern history, and bloodiest genocide, have almost vanished from our collective memory. Last week marked the 70th anniversary of the Great Terror in the Soviet Union in which tens of millions were murdered or imprisoned.

Russia's president, Vladimir Putin, at least commemorated for the first time what he termed "colossal" Soviet crimes by attending a memorial last month for its victims.

It was interesting watching Putin, former head of the FSB security service, denouncing crimes of its direct predecessors, KGB and NKVD. The same Putin who recently called the Soviet Union's collapse a "tragedy." Still, we applaud his long-overdue recognition of Communist-era crimes.

The Soviet terror began in the 1920s when Lenin ordered the extermination of Cossacks and opponents of the Bolsheviks. Next came Catholics of White Russia, and resisters to communism in the Baltic states and Moldova. Stalin then ordered liquidation of two million small farmers, known as "Kulaks."

In 1932-33, Stalin unleashed genocide against Ukraine's independent-minded farmers.

Six to seven million Ukrainians were shot or purposely starved to death. The man who directed this genocide, Lazar Kaganovich was made Hero of the Soviet Union and died in Moscow in 1991.

Attention Grabber

When Communist Party bureaucrats delayed Stalin's plans to transform the Soviet Union from a backward rural society into a modern industrial powerhouse, "Koba," as he was called, had NKVD shoot 700,000 party members. Thereafter, his orders were promptly obeyed.

Almost all the party and military hierarchy were executed during the Great Purges of 1937-38, which culminated in the Moscow Show Trials.

From 1934-1941 alone, some seven million victims were sent to the system of concentration camps known as the "gulag," including one million Poles, hundreds of thousands of Lithuanians, Latvians and Estonians, and half the entire Chechen and Ingush people. Volga Germans, Crimean Tatars, Bashkirs, Kalmyks followed. Stalin's gulag did not need gas chambers: Cold, disease and overwork killed 30% of inmates yearly.

To this day, Russian and foreign historians are unsure of the full number of Lenin and Stalin's victims. Estimates range from 20-40 million total deaths from 1922 to 1953.

Stalin committed his worst crimes well before Hitler's major atrocities got under way.

We have forgotten that Germany alone did not spark the Second World War. Germany and the U.S.S.R. jointly invaded Poland in 1939; Stalin then attacked Finland. Two years later, Britain and the U.S.S.R. invaded neutral Iran. History indeed remains the propaganda of the victors.

If we keep hectoring Germany and Japan to admit guilt for events of the 1940s, is it not time the United States, Britain and Canada admit their own culpability in allying themselves to Stalin, a monster who killed over four times the number of Hitler's victims?

After all, Stalin's concentration camps were up and running a decade ahead of Germany's. The murder of millions of Ukrainians and Balts took place before the world's gaze — six or seven years before the Second World War.

'Uncle Joe'

The foolish Roosevelt, who hailed Stalin as "Uncle Joe," and the cannier Winston Churchill both knew they were allied to the biggest mass murderer since Genghis Khan.

They used a larger devil to fight Germany who wanted an alliance with Britain! — then paid his price by handing over half of Europe to Moscow.

Remember this when today's warmongers wax poetic about the glories of World War II — and call for WW III.

Western powers should practice what they piously preach to Germany, Japan and, lately, Turkey, by at least apologizing for their sordid deal with Stalin, which was every bit as immoral as if they had made a deal with Hitler, as Stalin long feared they would, to destroy the Soviet Union.
